14th of December in Durrës and is based on non-formal education and different learning methods such as stimulation exercises, role plays, small working groups, debate, etc.

The project is financed from Erasmus + Programme launched from European Commission for promotion of better education, to develop their critical approach on topics such as social inclusion, diversity and tolerance.

A very important element of this programme is fostering the mobility of young people in Europe and learning about each other cultures.

The participants coming from eight different countries including Albania, Kosovo, Serbia, Macedonia, Italy, Turkey, United Kingdom and Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Participants will discuss about human rights education tools and will learn new tools on multimedia to promote human rights in local community.
